

Hi Everyone,

I hope you are keeping well.

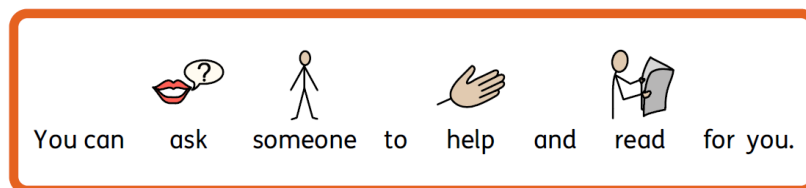

The image shows the login page for Fairfield Farm College. On the left is the college's logo, a green stylized 'F' with the text 'Fairfield Farm College'. On the right is a 'Login' section with a 'Username' field containing 'firstname.surname', a 'Password' field containing 'Firstname 123!', a 'Remember me' checkbox, a 'Forgotten details?' link, and a dark blue 'LOGIN' button with a right-pointing arrow.

Online learning powered by

Sorry if anyone has had trouble logging into Bksb, as I made a mistake on the example on the Bksb log in details sheet. Just to confirm your Bksb password needs a capital letter at the beginning - use the  key.

(It is not the same as your password for the computers at college. Bksb passwords are either your first name then 123! or your first name 12345! for shorter names)

Remember you can ask someone to read the text for you so you can focus on the maths skills. Bksb can be accessed on a computer or Ipad.

You can always email me at jo.lambert@ffc.ac.uk or on the tutors homework email account homework@ffc.ac.uk if you have any questions regarding bksb.

Now we all need to stay at home it is an opportunity to do some cooking and practice our Maths and measuring skills.

I have created a folder called Measuring in the Student Learning Area which includes the sheets we used in class to look at measuring tools and units. Challenges and problems will be added to the Student Learning Area, including a recording sheet for the problems below.

What measuring tools can you find at your home?

Measuring tools

Can you find the units of measure on the foods you have at home?

Here are all the kitchen utensils that I needed to make my chocolate cake. Can you spot which tools I need to use for measuring the ingredients?

If you want an extra challenge maybe you could double or half your recipe. (Do you think I doubled or halved my recipe?)

Jo's chocolate cake

I know my cooking is not as good as Robin's but it was good fun making it (and I'm looking forward to eating it too!).

I look forward to hearing about what you have cooked. Catering has some recipe suggestions if you need some ideas.

Take care

From
Jo

